

wm housing group

A housing based social enterprise focused on improving the quality of people's lives individually and collectively.

“Creating places where people are proud to live and work”

Based in Birmingham, Harden is in the best possible location for a key partner in the city's regeneration.

The association manages more than 1,700 affordable homes across the West Midlands conurbation and has earned a reputation for financial strength, innovative management and high quality services to customers for over 25 years.

One of Herefordshire's foremost providers of social housing, Kemble manages over 1,000 properties including sheltered housing schemes for older people in Hereford, family housing, small rural schemes in outlying towns and villages and housing with support in partnership with a range of specialist agencies.

Based in Worcester, Nexus provides affordable housing services to over 2,500 households across Worcestershire.

The association maintains strong links with inner city, market towns and rural neighbourhoods to deliver high quality homes and services for residents, leaseholders and freeholders. Since its establishment over 30 years ago, Nexus has earned a reputation for its effective partnership working, flexible solutions and financial strength.

One of the country's most successful stock transfer social housing organisations. It owns and manages approximately 18,000 homes across Coventry.

Whitefriars is also involved in a number of important partnership projects across the city and beyond. It has invested more than £340m in the repair and improvement of its housing stock, ensuring that the Government Decent Homes Standard is met ahead of schedule.

A traditional housing association formed in 1968 which owns the majority of the Group's housing properties in Birmingham, Solihull, Worcestershire and Herefordshire. Almost all properties exceed the Decent Homes Standard. Day to day responsibility for the management of the properties, responsive repairs, gas servicing and liaison with customers is undertaken by Harden, Kemble and Nexus.
